Hongrong, October 24rm, 1871. WR have just got through the Summer, as exceptionally cool one, and yet everybody is congratulating himself upon the return of a temperature in which he again feels as living being, and not as a mere existence enjoying a nort of vitality a little higher than vegetable life, but much below the ordinary standard of animal life. How delightful it is to be able to take walks again, and to get a good, cool night's rest; to be capable of thinking for ten minutes consecutively without feeling-that a serious strain is being put upon one's mental faculties; to be able to boat and ride-in fact, to be alive instead of half-dead. Such are the remarks made in one form of another all over the colony; but yet while people confess to suffering considerably during the hot weather, so short lived is the remembrance of past evils that during the cool months they take no pains to mitigate the heat of the Summer which will come upon them as surely as the months pass away. About this time last year a great deal was said about getting up a new Swimming Bath, in place of the old one which had been destroyed by the Typhoon; but month after Halpin, who is in charge of the expedition; hopes to Murray Barracks, complainant noticed two which chapsed before the robbery could be have month was lost, and nothing definite was done until just about the time when the cool weather was setting in. It, appears that a man named Joseph Rickman, who was a ship's steward, but deserted from the Willy Rickmore on her last visit to Shanghai, took up his quarters at Au Chalet, a little Russian wine inn on the Sicksway Road, about four miles from Shanghai, representing to the proprietrix that he was worth a considerable sum, which was on deposit with the Comptoir d'Escompte. On the faith of this, board, lodging, and occasional advances of money were made to him. After sometime bilis came in which his hostess was not in funds to pay off at once, and on being applied to for an instalment of his bill Rickman settled by giving a cheque on the abovenamed Bank. He had paid in Tle. 4,516,58, and had debited the firm with Tla. 8,028,5 as private expenses. The creditors protested against the latter amount as being excessive, and passed a resolution requesting the onsul to withhold Mr. Gordon's discharge until he had reduced the same to a reasonable aum. After considerable discussion, the Cour suggested that the creditors should name an amount which they thought would be a fair monthly allowance, and they after due consideration said that they thought Tle. 125 per month would be an ample allowance. A resolution was passed requiring Mr. Gordon to pay the amount overcharged, before his discharge is handed to him.

WHY CONSOLS DO NOT RISE. The Economist observes :- Many persons are surprised that Consols-which used to be the favourite security of all, which used to rise before anything else, and more than anything else-should not now be higher. They say, and justly, that never did other securities come so near Consols. The reason is that there never before was so good a competition to Consols as there is now. It is perfectly true that all great political events of the first order produce a general disorder in the money market, and so affect the prices of all accurities. We felt this at the outbreak of the French and German war last year. In consequence of it the value of money rapidly rose, and all securities became "weaker," and of less value. But Consols feel this general effect as well. They go down like the proper course would be for the Authorities rises, and when credit generally is disturbed. But (and this is the main consideration), in the transport grain from the South to this port, as | case of a great English war, "Consols" not only rapidly as possible ere, the ice closes it. ELECTRICITY v. THE NERVES. The Revue Scientifique contains in its number of the 2nd Sept., an interesting summary of Dr. Richardson's theory of a nervous atmosphere. In 1746 Cuneus was the first to experience an electric shock. Having, at Loyden, accidentally taken hold of a bottle full of water which communicated with an electric conductor, and attempted to take off the chain, with the hand that was unoccupied, he, to bis atter astonishment, felt a severe commotion. Muschenbræck immediately repeated the experiment, but with so little caution, as we learn from a letter of his to Réamur, that he lost his breath for a moment, and was two days, before recovering from the shock. In 1755, Franklin knocked down six strong men by an electric discharge and they declared that they felt no pain, and could not tell what had made them fall. Next carne Galvani with his frogs, and Aldini, who made a dead malefactor move by means of the sume fluid, and all these wonderful facts gave rise to the school of physiologists which attributes all animal motion to electrity. Dr. Richardson does not gainsay this opinion, but considers it insufficient. By mechanically irritating the muscles of aronnimal, recently killed, we make Minutes of a meeting of Consuls held at the the moseles contract. There was beard this afternoon, at 2 o'clock before Acting Chief-Indge Goodwin, an appeal case from the Consular Court of Tientein: J. Livingston and Co., Merchants and Agents for Mesus, Jardine, Matheson & Co. s steamers, Appellants; and Awo, for eight months their compradore, Respondent. Mr. Bird appeared for appellants, Mr. Harwood for respondent. The history of the case was briefly this :-Some time ago Awo, was engaged in Shanghai under an agreement drawn up, by Mr. Harwood, as compradore, (secured by satisfactory sureties) to J. Livingston & Co. The agreement stipulated among other things that there should be paid to Age a certain percentage on all goods sold by the firm through him, and a certain percentage on all freight and passengers secured by him for the steamers : be providing and maintaining all the servants necessary for the business, with certain stipulated exceptions. At the end of eight months he left the services of Livingston & Co., and on equaring accounts with them was found indebted to them in the sum Tls. 4,700; for payment of which, as he was without funds, his employers claimed on his sureties. Awo did not dispute the amount of his indebtedness, but came down to Shanghai to see his sureties about the payment of it. Shortly afterwards he returned to Tientsin and claimed from Livingston & Co., as an offset, a considerable sum, for a variety of items; one curious feature being Tls. 256 for dinners at the Chinese New Year, Squeezes to mandarins, &c. Livingston & Co. refusing to entertain this bill of claims, Awo sued them before Mr. Consul Lay, who disullowed a number of the items, including the one for squeezes, but allowed Tls. 252 as a fair proportion of a claim for TIs, 540 being expense incurred by Awo for conveying-his servants, 15 in all, to Tieutsin; and allowed also Tla. 1,745,42, being 1 per cent, on Tla. 349,083.42. the proceeds of goods sold through Awo, and for which he had really received only defendants appealed. In support of their appeal on the first point Mr. Bird read the agreement, which expressly stated that Awo was to "provide and maintain - all servants necessary to conduct the business. excepting"-such and such-and said that Awo was bound to find these at Tientsin and not at Shanghai. He might, otherwise, as well have provided them at Canton or Singapore, and claimed their passage money from those ports. In the Court below, plaintiff had attempted to show that there was a distinction between the commercial husiness and the steamboat agency of the firm, and it seemed to have been on consideration that the Court had granted what it considered a fair proportion of the claim. But no such distinction could be seen in the agree ment, and no evidence of it was produced Court. Now by the agreement, it must stand or fall, for this was a claim on the agreement and not a claim of qua tum meriti. His Lord ship said he could not see on what grounds the Tis. 252, had been allowed by the Court below. Mr. Harwood admitted it could not be sustained, and it was accordingly struck out. On the second and larger p int Mr. Bird explained how the difference of 1 per cent. arose. It arese from two modes of weighing syces which prevails at Tientsin, and as both bench and bur seemed a good deal in the dark on that Ching-ping tacl. Now Awo in receiving pay tingham Guardian. ditional as claimed.

deducted 4 candareens Chingping. Now this was covered. 2 per cent, and what more did he want? Bcsides, when he settled his accounts with Livingston & Co. before leaving, he did not dispute the correctness of the amount of the balance against him. He said nothing about the difference between Hong-ping and Ching-ping taels; he made been to Shanghai and consulted with his secubalance against him as originally made up was ers. No change in other kinds. consistent with his understanding of the agreement he had signed. This was at mere after-broughtalong with it, claims for dinners, squeez, ever, is very small. es, &c., which even the Court, below saw to be mere make weights. The case was strengthened. by the answer plaintiff gave when asked Hongkong Bank Shares, Old-63 to 64 por why he had not complained about the difference between the taels before. His reply Hongkong Bank Shuras, New-61 to 62 po was that after Mr. Livingston left there was very little business. If there had been plenty Union Insurance Society of Canton, new shares of business he probably would not have complained. But what had the amount of business China Traders' Insurance Company's Shares. done to do with the rate at which he was to bo paid? He then turned to the statement in the China and Japan Marine Insurance—Tle, 110 evidence of Mr. Forbes, one of the defendants. that "Awo every month compared the goods sold, with us, in Hong-ping taels, previously deducting his commission." Now this exactly corresponded with plaintiff's admission that he kept 4 candarcens out of every 2 Ching ping taels as his commission. It was plain therefore that commissions carned had been settled for from time to time, and did not enter into the final this. Awo received money for goods in Chiegfor the bulance. Plainly therefore the question of commission—no matter how much per cent. it was, did not enter at all into the matter of the final balance between the compradore and his employers. He remarked finally that had really sold Tis. 349,083:42 worth of goods, as alleged, in his claim.

Mr. Harwoods, address was brief. Defend. prove the amount of goods sold through plaintiff. Another book in which the accounts Hongkong Distillery Company-10 per cent. rendered by plaintiff were entored by defen- premium. dants would prove that plaintiffs claim for the Indo-Chinese Sugar Company-$17 per share per cent was well founded. The book had discount. two columns. The first entry was for a sale Hongkong Pier and Godowa Company, Limited of camlets at Tle. 14.0.0, which price was entered in col. 1. In col. 2 was entered Tls. 13.7.0 which his Lordship would find was neither more nor less than the money received by the shroff On London,in Chingping thele after deducting his commission. Now this defendants claimed to have received; and in settling with the compridere counted as being entitled to receive in Hong. ping, tacle; whereas Tls. 13,70 in Chingping taels amounted to only Tis. 13.6.315 Hong. ping and it was to obtain this rectification that plaintiff brought his claim. For, if, as there ought to have been in the books of a firm Ox Bongax. Bank, 3 days' sight 220 that kept its accounts in Hongping tacle, a On CALCUTTA. -Bank, 3 days' night 220 third column in which had been entered the On Shangeal .amounts less commission converted into Hongping tuels, the sum total of the whole sales in that column would be found to amount to Tie. 1.745.42 less than the amount for which he had accounted to his employers. And what he now sought was to have that amount deducted from the sum of his indebtedness to the firm. He was plainly entitled to it. For it would not do to say that the custom of the port for foreigners. to keep their accounts in Hongping taels, b und him to deduct the difference out of his commission. Before such a "custom" could be binding, it must be "reasonable, universal, and compulsory," which had by no means been proved. Awo's agreement had been drawn up under the 4th section of the Statute of Frauds, and there was nothing in it compelling him to account in Hongping tacle.

His Lordship concurred at once in Mr. Harwood's view, that Awo was entitled to the additional a per cent. on the sales of goods effected through him. But as the actual amount of the sales on which this commission would be exigible had not been proved in Court, the books produced in Court would be banded to the officer of the Court for examination. was admittedly indebted all along to deligationis, they should be allowed to his clients. Mr. Harwood contended that us the Court had sustained the judgment of the Court below in the miste rial issue of the case, costs should be allowed to respondent. His Lardship decided to give no order as to costs. - Courier.

THE FIJI COODIE TRAFFIC. The Times correspondent at Sydney writes. under date July 13, as tollows, respecting the operation of the Polynesian Action Queensland:—"The traffic has been humanised, and, as might be expected, shows strong signs of collapsing altogether. When once the islanders have thated the sweets of phatation life in Queensland they are seldom willing to return to it, or, if they do return, they do so only upon such terms as make their labour dear compared with Enropean. It is now required that a Government Agent should proceed with such vessel licensed to recruit in the Southern Seas, and the experience of those who conduct these excursions is that they will not pay the attendant expenses. No nurive is to be ombarked unless with consent of the chief and limself, and the making out of a formal contract signed by some Consul or missionary and the emigrant; and such men are hard to find, and will be still more rare when curlosity is more satisfied. I have before me the report of the Harriet King, a vessel fitted for 208 passengers, written by the Government Agent, who considers that the traffic cannot last. This document proves the worst fears here entertained with respect to this trade, for, although the crew of this ship obtained a company of immigrants to the number of 106, without engaging in any questionable transactions, they saw and heard enough to prove that . recruiting was not always carried on in so pacific a manner. The impression left on the mind of the Agent is that, so far as Queensland is concerned, the traffic must die out shortly; not from the inability of the islanders to do the work required of them, but SILK MERCERS, TAILORS, & GENERAL because of their tutter detestation of it. His words are. Un both these points the hard work and hard treatment which they had to endure, and would not return to the colony at any price. The Agent already quoted also says - As the trade is at present carried on it is impossible that any kidnapping should be done by Queensland vessels, and there is every reason to believe that the trade will dic out, as the majority of the islanders who return bome decline to emigrate again. But I fear that the influence of the Queensland licence bus stimulated a traffic in coloured labour for the supply of Fiji, which has been conducted upon principles far less humane. The marrative already used contains these words: - Great comlaints are made at all the islands of the kidnapping of the natives by the Fiji ships. The regular custom is to overhaul those canoes which are preceeding from one island to an other, and bring the natives on board the vessel. These are facts which will demand the
